

Global Educator

August 2010: Volume 4, Issue 2

Pursuing Ministerial Excellence

Faculty Education Blesses Central America

Brad Thompson, GATS representative for Central America/ Caribbean reports: I am seeing an enthusiasm in the forty-eight teachers in Guatemala that I have never seen before. They are more focused and professional in their approach and have adapted new teaching techniques. Many who were not high school graduates have now obtained their GED and others have taken college classes to get their teaching degree. Our faculty has risen to a much higher level. They have become more responsible teachers and are showing pride in their teaching ministry. Our goal now is to be accredited through the national department of education.

A Bible school can have a nice facility and great curriculum, but if the teachers are not equipped the program will not be productive. Faculty training empowers our teachers to equip students to impact nations. This is the harvest you will reap through the faculty development seminars offered by GATS.

1. Teachers will become well versed in using course objectives and lesson plans.
2. The wide variety of teaching styles taught and demonstrated in seminars will be practiced.
3. The qualities of a good teacher, established and defined in seminars, will be implemented and developed by teachers.
4. Teachers will focus on the “final product” they want to produce.
5. Attendance at the Guatemala Bible school is at an all time high—363 students!
6. Nicaragua and Honduras have been blessed with new properties to build Bible school facilities on. This is felt to be God’s way of putting His stamp of approval on the renewed vision for training.

We have the piece to your puzzle...

GATS
Training!

Student Stories. On any given day a host of God-called missionaries and instructors are training literally thousands of students for apostolic ministry.

Our students come from every class of life, have diverse backgrounds, and speak dozens of different languages. Yet they all come, having one thing in common. They want to be equipped to reach their world. They are doing just that, as upwards of 200,000 souls are being baptized in Jesus name and receiving the baptism of the Holy Spirit each year. Hundreds of churches are being started or led by these trained men and women.

Within the pages of this web-based modern Book of Acts you will find the stories of apostolic men and women, students and staff in and out of our schools relentlessly endeavoring to do their best to achieve apostolic revival. Through the sights and sounds of articles, pictures, podcasts, and video clips stories are shared of how, together, students, sponsors and schools are touching people, transmitting truth, and transforming nations.

New Resource!

<http://studentstories.org>

GATS is Equipping the Pacific Region

Kevin Vacca, GATS representative for the Pacific region shares some exciting highlights:

SAMOA: Advance Teacher Training took place in Samoa with seven in attendance.

FIJI: One hundred and forty enjoy eight GATS lessons in Fiji.

TONGA: With seventeen in attendance, Tonga has three, four hour, days of Advance Teacher Training—making them second in the world to complete twenty-four hours of Advance Educator Series lessons.